2. Citations and explanations (Rule 70.7)

Reference is made to the following documents identified in the International Search Report (ISR):

D1 : US 6073634 A (13 June 2000)

D2 : US 6076531 A (20 June 2000)

The claimed invention relates to a cosmetic applicator comprising a rod and a brush, wherein the applicator is formed with a fixing portion pressed to be flat at a lower end of the rod into which the brush is fixedly inserted.

D1 discloses a unit for the packaging and application of a make-up product for keratinous fibers, in particular eyelashes, including a body having a bottom in which a block of the product is disposed, a lid for covering the bottom in a detachable manner, and an applicator device including a handle of a substantially flat profile, and carrying at least one applicator element having a free end.

D2 discloses a device for applying a substance, in particular a cosmetic such as mascara, including a receptacle containing a supply of the substance, and an applicator element having an axis, the applicator being provided on the axis at one end with a handle element and at the other end with an applicator element, the handle element and the applicator element being interconnected by a link element.

The feature of the present invention, such as a cosmetic applicator formed with a fixing portion pressed to be flat at a lower end of the rod into which the brush is fixedly inserted, is not disclosed in D1 and D2. Therefore, the subject matter of claims 1 to 2 is novel pursuant to PCT Article 33(2).

The subject matter of claims 1 to 2 is considered to involve an inventive step pursuant to PCT Article 33(3), since it refers to an improved product, such as a cosmetic applicator wherein the brush has a flat face defined by the fixing portion formed in the rod itself, a region that requires delicate operation can be easily cosmeticized and there is no need for an additional means for making the brush in a flattened shape, which is not known or even suggested in the prior art, particularly in D1 and D2.

Claims 1 to 2 also meet the criteria set out in PCT Article 33(4), because all the claims are considered to be industrially applicable.
